

Pulp & Paper Edge

The monthly Market Intelligence Report is the authoritative analysis of the pulp and paper industry in Australia, New Zealand and Asia.

Pricing – local production, imported and exported paper and paperboard grades including currency and inflation considerations

Production – Australian facilities, their access to resources and expenditure on capital projects

Trade – volumes and pricing of imports and exports, the impact on the domestic market and international market trends

New projects and facility upgrades – changes to capacity and processes, major capital works and market drivers behind the projects

Company strategies – company positioning in the paper and paperboard markets, planned investments, changes in market share and company results

Strategic issues – mergers, acquisitions and new entrants, changes in resource availability, market trends, environmental legislation and initiatives and industry bodies

International developments – globalisation, freight costs, major new mills, the influence of international prices for pulp, paper and paperboard on the Australasian markets and investment by both international companies in Australasia, or local companies in overseas markets

Government policies – at the federal and state levels impacting resource availability, pricing, trade, tariffs and markets, environmental standards and future market requirements.

In addition, each edition contains a feature, such as a chief executive interview, or an in-depth analysis of issues of interest to the industry.

Pulp & Paper Edge analyses all aspects and issues influencing the markets for pulp, paper, packaging and recovered paper, from the raw resource through to final consumption.
